Sometime since we committed an error in speaking of the board of directory in the Louis ville and Frankfort Railroad Company. We charged them with changing the board so frequently, that it was next to impossible to estab lish a rigid system upon the road. In this we

The importance of some fixed rules must be apparent to all. To regulate and organize the road, to assign to each officer in command his duty, and require the faithful performance o it, is the most necessary step to be taken.

We learn, from a member of the board, that measures are being taken to accomplish this desirable object. When this system is once established, we shall hear but few complaints. All will be done in order, if the officers carry out the instructions of the board, -if they fail to de it, the board should at once know the reason

But for his vigorous and esolute interference on one or two occasions, I have been rightly informed, the organizaion of the party would have been broken and all their best interests sacrificed by Whig manœuvering or indiscreet counsels of some injudicious Democrats. I should like to see him elected to preside over the Senate. He has every qualification in the way of a clear head, a thorough knowledge of parliamentary rule, considerable experience as a legislator, perfect self-possession, and a pleasing and graceful ad less, to enable him to fill the chair of the Senate with the greatest officiency.
